

9. So far as I know, nobody anywhere has a perfect telepathic ability. But the space Brothers have told him they make mistakes. As to the exercises given in GA's course in TELEPATHY, they really are not difficult, but do take patience and perseverance in practice. After all, most of us need exercise in these two characteristics, don't we? And we often expect results much more rapidly when we begin a new endeavor than we would expect a tree to grow from a seed. Yet there is not much difference between the two when we stop to think about it.

10. I'd love to come to Japan but that takes a lot of money which I don't have. But I am saving every cent I can and when I succeed in having enough, I will surely make the trip. Nothing would make me happier than to visit every nation in the world, and especially to meet my loyal friends with whom I have worked for so many years. Thank you for your hospitality. I shall look forward to accepting it when the riches of the Father are poured upon me sufficiently to enable me to visit your beautiful country.

Please do not worry about those who have left you. The world is in a start of great confusion and changes are being made very rapidly, more so than we have ever known. People are responding in kind. When you understand, you are not bothered. You know that in the Love of the Infinite all things will work out far more wisely than any man could plan them.

Regarding Matsumura and his trip to Saturn, has he told you what he saw on that planet; about the buildings and people; how long he claims to have been there; what he saw from the ship as he traveled interplanetary; has he described the inside of the ships in which he traveled; where he was picked up and by what kind of a ship? I would like to know the answers to these questions and any others that you might think of. With such information, I might be able to get better answers to your questions. But for the moment, I must say that while I agree with you that Matsumura is an intelligent, honest and sincere man, I do believe someone is playing a very cruel trick upon him. I cannot get any feeling that he has met true space travelers or taken any interplanetary trip in a physical form, although he might have had such experiences in a dream state. How long was he gone on his supposed trip, and did any of his friends miss him while he was away?
