Dear Co-worker:

A personal message to all of you.-- A Life Line has been thrown our way many times while we were drowning in a sea of mental opinions which made us struggle for survival. For they were ready to devour us at any moment. Somehow we were able to save ourself from that fate, but always with an anticipation of a greater struggle ahead.

The human mind is an odd magician, at time it preforms what could be called a miracle. But once it takes such an action, it must continue the action to survive. And the more minor victories it has to its credit, the more it depends upon itself, until the magic tricks run out. Then it is suddenly swallowed up in the jaws of its own creation. Yet through life, the life line was ever present to save it from such a fate. But its self-will and determination as well as its pride, would not take advantage of that help. For this would have meant giving up all of this for the WILL AND WISDOM OF THE CREATOR.

The Life Line is not only thrown to us as a life saver on the day we are about to remember as the Birth Day of Christ, but every moment of our life. Only to realize the weaknesses of our own personal efforts that we may place ourself in the hands of the THY WILL BE DONE.

Here are two of the Seven Cardinal Principles. 1st., respect. 2nd., unwavering faith.

Respect to whom? To life itself, or the consciousness of the Creator. An example; I have witnessed a miracle of such respect from one who worked with me for many years. In the beginning the respect was not for me but for the thoughts that came through me. And progress and contentment left no room for doubts about the future. And this benediction was shared with many throughout the world.

But when The Life Line was cast aside for self-opinions which were no different than those of the people of the world, the mind began to guide its own ship on the sea of life. And faith in the giver of life was limited to self, and service to the many ceased. Confusion took over for the Master Navigator was no longer at the helm.

So respect to the giver of wisdom, through what ever channel it may come to serve the Divine purpose unselfishly, automatically establishes faith in the Will Of The Creator. Then the eye of consciousness that knows and sees all, pilots the individual ego towards the port of Eternal Life.

May Christmas bring this realization to each of you and leave no room for hurts, misunderstanding or judgements that you may serve all mankind.

Let your heart be the manger of eternal light that will dispell the darkness in the minds of others. And the task that you have been chosen for will bring rewards a hundred fold.

Sincerely
